

But when at the end of October, the Emperor moved west, his force was swollen by many of the leading princes of Northern Italy and some Lombard prelates. The march took its way as far west as Turin, and then south to Bologna. Here, at the beginning of February, 1037, the Emperor divided the host; Henry of Bavaria, his son-in-law, with three thousand knights and the accompanying foot, was directed to take his way through Tuscany, the Papal states* and Campania; from which, after re-instating Innocent, he was to over into Apulia, and join the Emperor there for the great attack on Roger. While the Duke climbed the Apennines from the valley of the Montone, Lothar took his course through Ravenna and the March of Ancona. It was hard fighting all the way; the nominal lord of Italy had to wring not only homage, but even the civility from Italy by armed force. Ancona directed an on the imperialists which them two thousand men; it had to be into surrender by a joint from land and its probably that it would be handed over to the mercy of Lothar's ally, its
